

Backcountry and Affirm partner to give outdoor enthusiasts a transparent way to pay over time

June 25, 2026

SALT LAKE CITY & SAN FRANCISCO--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Jun. 25, 2026-- The best outdoor experiences often start long before the trailhead, with the gear that helps make them possible. That's why Backcountry and Affirm (NASDAQ: AFRM) have partnered to give outdoor enthusiasts a clearer, more flexible way to pay for the purchases fueling their next adventure.

Whether they're gearing up for ski season, upgrading a mountain bike, or replacing camping gear before their next trip, eligible shoppers at Backcountry and its family of brands — including Competitive Cyclist, MotoSport, Steep & Cheap, and Level Nine Sports — can now choose Affirm at online checkout. With Affirm, they'll always know exactly what they owe, when payments are due, and when they'll be done paying, with no late fees or hidden charges.

"Backcountry is a gateway to new experiences, new challenges, and more time outdoors, not just a place to purchase gear," said Kevin Lenau, President at Backcountry. "By offering Affirm, we're giving customers more flexibility in how they pay, helping them feel as confident at checkout as they do in the gear they're choosing."

"Outdoor enthusiasts are planners. They research, compare, and invest in gear they expect to use for years. They deserve a payment option that gives them the same level of clarity and control," said Pat Suh, SVP of Revenue at Affirm. "We're proud to partner with Backcountry to help customers pay in the way that works best for them, without having to worry about late fees, compounding interest, or other surprises."

Backcountry joins Affirm's global network of nearly 515,000 merchant partners, including leading brands like Costco, StubHub, REVOLVE, Net-a-Porter, StockX, and many more.
